This collection of papers is based on presentations, comments, and discussions conducted at the international workshop, “Thoughts on Well-being and Citizens Working Together: Alternative Care Practices in Canada and Denmark” on February 27, 2009 at the National Museum of Ethnology (NME), and the international research forum, “Anthropology of Life Design and Well-being” on February 28 and March 1, 2009 at Ritsumeikan University and the succeeding cooperative research conducted by the “The Anthropology of Care and Education for Life,” a core research project of NME for FY11–13. The forum was held to publicize the results of three projects: a study of “Anthropological Perspectives on Well-being and Life Design,” an inter-university research project of NME for FY08–11, “Anthropology of Life Design and Well-being: Studies on the Creation of Multifunctional Space and its Flexible Application,” a core research project of NME for FY08–09, and “Historical Anthropology on the Creation of Multifunctional Spaces for Welfare and Education in Multicultural Aging Societies,” a research project promoted by a grant-in-aid for scientific research (B) for FY09–11. The research forum was organized by the National Museum of Ethnology and Ritsumeikan University (Research Center and Global COE Program for Arts Vivendi). Sponsors were Hiroshima University, Japanese Society of Cultural Anthropology, Japan Association for Canadian Studies, Kansai NPO Alliance, and Mainichi Newspapers.

We would like to thank all who participated in what was a well-attended and lively discussion in the workshop and the research forum. We would like to express our deep appreciation for their efforts as well as for the many organizations that supported the research.

In the process of publishing this collected paper, we were much helped by the comments of our reviewers in the research publishing committee of NME. Dr. Peter Matthews gave further comments on all the papers helping us to fully express our results in English. Finally, publication of this book could not have been realized without the thoughtful and devoted efforts of our copy-editor, Ms. Junko Koguchi in the research publication department of NME. We would like to express our profound and sincere thanks to all of them.
