Preface

This volume is an outgrowth of two panels entitled ‘Sedentarization among nomadic peoples,’ organized by Kazunobu Ikeya, and ‘Development and Pastoralists’ organized by Kazuyuki Watanabe. The panels were held under the commission on nomadic peoples, as part of the Conference of the International Union of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences (IUAES 2014) at Makuhari Messe, Chiba City, Japan, on 15 May, 2014. Most of persons whose work is presented here gave papers in this volume. All papers have been revised substantially and updated, since they were originally presented.

We thank the organizing committee of IUAES 2014 for their support and assistance in facilitating the publication of the papers from this conference. We wish also to express our gratitude to the editorial committee of Senri Ethnological Studies (SES), published by the National Museum of Ethnology, and the Publications Office staff of the National Museum of Ethnology for reproducing the maps, photographs and figures. Editorial assistance, proofreading, and preparation of the index were performed by the Publications Office staff of the National Museum of Ethnology. We express our deep appreciation for their hard work.

We hope these papers will assist in formulating forward-looking policies for nomadic peoples worldwide, as well as foster their future development and improvement of their welfare. We express our heartfelt thanks to our many friends among the nomadic peoples for their generosity, patience, and the valuable data they provided.
